BedAvailability.com Urges Use of Federal Veteran's Benefits Program as Means to Pay for Assisted Living, Residential Care (RCFE) and Board and Care Costs

MISSION VIEJO, CA -- (MARKET WIRE) -- 01/15/2007 --
BedAvailability.com, a California Corporation, has aligned with a Statewide company to provide education about, and processing of, Veteran's Benefits, to help pay for assisted living, residential care and RCFE costs of our Veterans.

Stuart Furman, CFO of BedAvailability.com, and also a practicing California attorney, states, "There is a Federal program that offers benefits available to our Veterans that has been around since the early 1950s that most people are not aware of. Given the ever-increasing cost of assisted living, residential care, and board and care in the Country, this program, paid directly from the United States Federal Treasury, has dramatically helped those qualifying Veterans with their housing costs in assisted living facilities, board and care facilities and RCFEs."

The Veterans program does require qualification to access the benefits but Mr. Furman points out that there are some very straightforward estate planning tools that can be used to allow the Veteran to qualify. "The cases that I have seen where the Veteran accessed these benefits have been lifesavers. Often there is a spouse at home and the benefits are necessary to avoid a complete spend down of a family's assets," Mr. Furman adds.

BedAvailability.com has put a link on their Home Page, at www.BedAvailability.com, for inquiries into this Federal Veterans benefit program. Facility owners can rest easy knowing that their fees and costs will be paid timely from the Federal government. Families of prospective board and care residents who are Veterans can afford better facilities for their loved ones and are encouraged to learn about this valuable program.
